Throws Water on Fuse During Storm and Is Electrocuted

Craighead Farmer, Afraid To Use Telephone, Tries To Put Out Smoking Fuse Box, Fearing Fire In His Barn, And Is Electrocuted.

Earl C. Heflefinger, farmer, was electrocuted in the barn on his farm near Craighead, Cumberland county, two miles south of Carlisle, when he threw water from a metal milk can on a smoking fuse box which had been short circuited by a high tension wire during the storm Thursday.

The heavy wind, hail and rain storm that swept Cumberland county Thursday blew a tree over on the Heflefinger farm and broke a high tension wire which fell on a low tension wire that supplied the Heflefinger barn with electricity. The heavy voltage caused the fuse box in the barn to smoke and Heflefinger was alarmed because of the possibility of fire.

The man went to a neighbor's to telephone but was warned against using the telephone because of the lightning. He wanted to tell the electric light company to turn off his current but decided it would be too dangerous. He returned to the farm, picked up a milk can full of water to put out the fire. He threw the water over the fuse box and fell dead.

The storm that tore the live wire from the pole on the Heflefinger farm also crippled all the telephones in the vicinity. Austin B. Hertzler, who lives on an adjacent farm, drove to Carlisle with the news of the fatal accident. He notified an undertaker and the Cumberland county coroner, Dr. William S. Ruch.

Heflefinger was 40 years old and the father of ten children. He is also survived by his wife and parents, who all live in the vicinity. The children are: James and John Heflefinger, both of Carlisle; Frank, Martha, Mary, Sarah, Austin, Rebecca, Alice Ann and Doris Heflefinger, all at home. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Heflefinger, who live near Craighead.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Truck Overturns Near New Oxford

Upsetting on the Lincoln highway a short distance east of New Oxford at midnight Thursday night a truck owned by L. H. Garber, Timberville, Virginia, and loaded with produce bound for Philadelphia, was slightly damaged.

The truck ran over a small embankment alongside the highway and overturned. It could not be learned whether the driver was injured or not, as after the accident, he continued on to Philadelphia, in a second truck owned by Mr. Garber and also loaded with produce.

No report of the accident was made to the highway patrol substation here.

SLIGHT DAMAGE FROM STORMS

Nearby Counties Heavy Hit By Thursday Afternoon Gales.

No reports of damage from either the wind or the electrical storms which swept over the county late Thursday were heard today. While the rain wind and electrical disturbances were heavy, this county received only a portion of the storm which caused heavy damage in the neighboring counties of Cumberland, Dauphin, York and Lancaster.

Unusually heavy rain fell here, the storm first breaking shortly before 3 o'clock and continuing intermittently for several hours. A heavy wind, which at times increased to a gale, accompanied the rain.

Philadelphia, June 27 (AP).—A trail of unroofed buildings and uprooted trees today marked the passage of a severe electrical and wind storm in Pennsylvania.

At Bridgeport, near Norristown, the roofs of nineteen buildings were torn off, the gale cutting a path of a quarter of a mile through the town. Damage was estimated at $100,000.

Among the buildings unroofed was the Broadway theater. About 100 persons were in the place at the time, but none were injured.

In Lancaster county, damage was heavy, principally caused by burning barns and other outbuildings on farms.

Heavy damage resulted in central Pennsylvania. Fallen trees and telephone poles made many highways impassable. In Dauphin and Cumberland counties, about a dozen houses were unroofed and many small buildings wrecked. Two barns in Cumberland county were fired by lightning. A farmer near Carlisle was killed when he threw water on a fuse box in his barn when it became short circuited.

Stock Market Sags In Another Drive

New York, June 27 (AP).—The last glimmer of speculative optimism in Wall Street was very nearly extinguished by still another bear drive in today's stock market.

Prices sagged substantially but trading was dull. The market had been permitted to close higher on two successive days for the first time this month which in the opinion of professionals is about the best that could be expected with speculative enthusiasm so close to the vanishing point.

The market rallied a little in the opening transactions but quickly weakened.

"GOLF" COURSE OPENED HERE

Miniature 18 Holes Put Into Shape On Buford Avenue.

Gettysburg's first miniature, golf course was opened on Buford avenue, Wednesday, and many favorable comments about the place were given by those who played around the 18 holes.

Putters are the only stocks used by the players.

The course is full of man-made hazards which should give the smartest golfers plenty of trouble. Fifty is par for the course, but no one has yet shot the 18 holes in par.

The grounds are laid out in rustic setting, with shrubbery and flowers enhancing the beauty of the course. Sand bunkers are distributed around the place as traps for the unwary golfer who overshoots the cup.

Sponge Substance
A special sponge substance, is used on each hole so that the playing surface is always smooth and requires no rolling. This sponge substance, which is in the order to stimulate grass, is patented, and is very expensive.

According to the architect who laid out the course, the Gettysburg course is one of the finest in this section of the country, one in Washington, D. C., being its nearest rival.

Putters and balls for the golfers are furnished by the management.

Four large flood lights at each corner of the field illuminate the place for night playing.

Paul D. Charles, chief pilot at the Gettysburg airport, and his brother, J. Shelly Charles, are operators of the local miniature golf course. Victor Sponsler, a former student at Gettysburg college, is manager of the course.

To Study Plan To Inform Electorate

Bedford Springs, June 27 (AP).—John G. Brooks, Erie, today was elected by unanimous vote the new president of the Pennsylvania Bar association.

Brooks succeeds Bernard J. Myers, Lancaster.

The association approved by a close vote the appointment of a committee to consider whether some plan should be devised whereby the association can gather and disseminate information about candidates for the appellate court.

William S. Dalvaly who made the proposal said it was only fair that voters should be given impartial information about the candidates.

APPLE EMBARGO NOT TO AFFECT LOCAL GROWERS

Lack Of Maggot And Fact Crop Is Late Will Protect Section.

VIRGINIA CROP TO BE HIT HARD

The apple embargo which Great Britain has announced will be placed upon certain grades of American apples, effective July 7, and continuing until fall, will not greatly affect the Adams county apple crop, was the belief of local growers today.

Arthur Rice, Biglerville, one of the largest apple growers, declared that while he has not studied the problem thoroughly and does not know how extensive it will be, if the embargo extends no later than September 15, the local crop will not be affected at all.

No Maggots Here

"We have no maggots in our apples here," Mr. Rice stated today. "I understand that that is the purpose of the embargo, so I cannot see how it would affect the local crop. However if the embargo is fixed as to grades rather than on localities, it might affect our crop here if it remains on too long in the fall."

"I believe we would have received some information from the International Apple Shippers association, if it greatly affected us. I have not had any notice as yet," Mr. Rice added.

Extensive Exports

Mr. Rice explained that there are extensive exports of apples from Adams county and that any curtailment of the market in the late fall might be harmful. He said that a large amount of U. S. Commercial 1 and U. S. No. 1 are shipped from this section. Only the first grade is effected by the embargo according to reports from Washington.

The maggot is said to be prevalent in New York, Massachusetts and some sections of New Jersey.

Washington, June 27.—The British Embassy has sent a note to the State Department declaring a temporary embargo on certain types of American apples, it was learned Thursday.

The purpose of the embargo is to keep out the apple maggot, which is partially prevalent in the New England and New York apple growing regions. Officials of the Department of Agriculture said they did not believe the embargo would seriously affect Virginia, since there is relatively little of the maggot in the Virginia apple orchards.

Winchester, Va., June 27.—Commercial apple growers of the Winchester district said Thursday they believed the increase of an order at London prohibiting the importation of certain brands of American apples from July 7 to November 15 was an act of reprisal as a result of the passage of the high tariff measure.

Apple growers said the chief grade to be affected was "U. S. Commercial No. 1," which is in great demand in England and other markets of the United Kingdom. It also will prohibit the shipment of No. 2 grades and the unclassified grades. Another grade affected is "U. S. Early Export."

Trying To Find Reason

George F. Petley, exporter, received a telegram today from R. G. Phillips, of Rochester, N. Y., secretary of the International Apple Shippers' Association, saying their officers and agents had been unable to ascertain the reason for the order.

The only grades that can be shipped during the period are "U. S. No. 1" and "Fancy" in barrels, and "Fancy" and "Extra Fancy" in boxes.

The order is effective during the peak of the usual exporting season. Most of the apples so affected will have become matured by the middle of October, but by the time they are packed and shipped the peak will have passed.

Growers Concerned

Commercial apple growers of the entire Shenandoah-Cumberland-Potomac belt of Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and Southeastern Pennsylvania are concerned over the situation. They declare it will have the effect of making early fall varieties, usually exported, cheap and perhaps a drug on the home market.

It has been estimated by Federal agents that the apple districts of the four States contain approximately 12,000,000 apple trees, nearly all of which are of bearing age. The district immediately around Winchester is distinctly an export (Continued on Second Page)

Sees Women Clip Roses Here And Warns Against Practice

A warning that motorists who cut the flowers or break the stems of rose bushes along the Lincoln highway in Adams, York and Lancaster counties will be prosecuted and fined was announced Thursday by the state highway department. State law prescribes a fine of $25 for each vine "cut, trimmed or removed" without permission of the planters.

The warning came, highway officials said, as a result of a drive by one of the officials in the vicinity of Gettysburg, Sunday, when he saw two women clipping large sprays from the bushes and continuing to break off stems after their arms were laden with the blooms. When warned that they were liable to heavy fines, the women jumped into their car and sped away.

John W. Keller, the department's forester, who has supervised roadside plantings along main highways, has received many favorable comments from motorists who enjoyed the blooms in that section.

LUZERNE VOTE TO BE CERTIFIED

Court To Hand Down Order To Officials Late Today.

Wilkes-Barre, June 27 (AP).—Based on a formal order by Judge Benjamin Jones, expected to be handed down today, the Luzerne county commissioners Monday will certify the vote of the primary election, it was announced today by the county solicitor.

The order of Judge Jones will be in accordance with an order of the state supreme court of June 21, which directed the return to the secretary of the commonwealth.

This return will be subject to such modification, correction, or rejection as may be ordered by the supreme court. The appeal already taken to the court is founded on objections presented by attorneys for Francis Shunk Brown, wishing to prevent computation of perforated ballots used in the primary.

The allegations are that the perforated ballots are illegal and void. Counsel for Gifford Pinchot, the other aspirant for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, hold that the perforated ballots were legal. This view is sustained by opinions of President Judge William McLean, Judge Clarence Coughlin and Judge Jones, who hold that the ballots are legal and valid.

THIRTY MISSING IN BOAT BLAST

Lightning Strikes Barge Loaded With Tons Of Dynamite.

Brookville, Ontario, June 27 (Canadian Press).—Between twenty-five and thirty men were believed killed Thursday when lightning exploded about twenty tons of dynamite aboard the drill boat J. B. King, which was removing shoals in Brookville Narrows of the St. Lawrence river, two miles west of here. There were forty-two men aboard the vessel.

Many of the crew were said to be asleep in their bunks when the terrific blast reduced the boat to splinters.

A number of survivors were picked up by a United States coast guard cutter and brought to hospitals here, most of them with only slight injuries.

Wheat Prices Up 3 Cents In West

Chicago, June 27 (AP).—Anticipating some favorable announcement from the Grain Stabilization corporation, the grain trade bid up wheat Thursday 2½ to 3½ cents a bushel over Wednesday's close.

The announcement, forthcoming after the market's close, was a pledge of the corporation that it would sell no more 1929 wheat and would hold what remains in its granaries until it may sell without depressing prices.

In no event, he said, will this 1929 "stabilization" wheat be thrown on the market to depress prices.

FIGHT ON VETS' BILL CONTINUES

Senate May Increase Pensions Fixed By House Measure.

Washington, June 27 (AP).—The controversy between the president and congress over veterans' relief legislation was renewed today in the senate.

It centered upon the compromise house bill, designed to bring into accord the conflicting views of the legislative and executive branches of the government.

The finance committee was called into session this morning to discuss the measure.

Director Hines of the veterans' bureau, and John Thomas Taylor of the American Legion were summoned as witnesses.

Meanwhile a move was fostered on the Democratic side to increase the pensions by the compromise to the level of those authorized in the Spanish American war measure, recently enacted over the veto of the president.

At the same time word was spread, the president was opposed to increasing the financial committees on the measure beyond those approved by the house.

AIR CONQUEROR RESTS IN N. Y.

Will Hop Off For West Within Short Time, He Declares.

New York, June 27 (AP).—Conqueror of Pacific and Atlantic and just 2500 miles from a circumnavigation of the globe, Captain Kingsford-Smith and the crew of the monoplane Southern Cross today were the honored guests of the city of New York.

At dusk, last night, the Australian set his black monoplane down at Roosevelt field completing a three thousand mile flight from Ireland on an epic journey, interrupted only by a 24 hour stop for fuel at Harbor Grace.

As soon as New York gets through telling them what heroes they are, the pilots expect to take the Southern Cross on a non-stop flight to Oakland, California, completing for Captain Kingsford-Smith a trip which he started on May 21, 1928. Dressed in fresh clothes, a late dinner consumed, the captain lugged back comfortably in a big chair in his suit at the Hotel Roosevelt. His Pacific flight was the hardest, he said.

New World For Blind Man Who Recovers His Sight

Always Thought Of Women Dressed In Bustles And Men In Sideburns; Cannot Realize It Is Same World.

Chicago, June 27.—J. P. Fish, celebrated blind business man, sat in his easy chair at dusk listening to his wife read, just as he had done for thirty years.

The world was in total darkness for Fish, but he was content. His business college had prospered exceedingly in spite of his blindness and he was happy with an excellent income, good friends and his faithful wife.

Then the miracle happened. A veil seemed to be lifted from his eyes. Fish first saw a chair, then a picture and finally the woman who was reading to him.

"Something has happened," he told his wife. "I think, I think I can see."

That happened Monday and immediately there began for Fish the great adventure of discovering the world anew.

News From Neighboring Counties

FAILED TO APPEAR BAIL IS WITHDRAWN

York—Hayes Myers was committed to the York county jail Wednesday night on a charge of unlawful possession of liquor. The information was made before Alderman Jacob Stager and the warrant was served by Deputy Sheriff E. R. Jacoby.

Myers was under $2,500 bond for his appearance in Federal court several weeks ago but failed to appear. He was charged with violating the national prohibition laws, that charge resulting from a raid by Federal prohibition agents last September. Several Federal agents were in town looking for him last week, but Myers, it is said, escaped from them. He was located in the epper end of the county on a farm.

HOLD WOMAN IN GAS STATION THEFT

Hagerstown—Mrs. Bruce Peck was held under $1000 bond for the action of the November Grand Jury by Justice George Huber, of Hancock, Wednesday for the alleged robbery of the gasoline station and store of C. W. Myers, Hancock.

Mrs. Peck was arrested late Tuesday night by Deputies Cushman and Gouff and Constable Barnhart, and implicated her husband and another man, stating that they robbed the place while she waited in a car on the outside.

BARN BURNED IN STORM WEDNESDAY

Waynesboro—During the thunder storm about 5 p. m. Wednesday lightning struck the barn on the farm tenanted by Simon Smith, near Sabillasville.

The structure burned to the ground. Two horses, one calf, harness and a quantity of hay were consumed in the flames.

The Blue Ridge fire department responded and did good work.

MOUNTAINEER HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Chambersburg—A story of evil was brought from the mountains near Spring Run late Wednesday by officers who arrested Isaac Everts, 60, burly mountaineer-farmer, on statutory charges and brought to the county home, three of his daughters, two of them accompanied by children.

Hazel, 24 years old, her brown hair falling in a disheveled heap about her neck, was spokesman for the frightened, whimpering family as she pressed Teddy, her 3-year-old son, to her bosom. Myrtle, 30, bare-footed and with an impediment of the speech that renders her efforts at talk unintelligible, clutched a three-months old, undernourished child Harry to her.

A NICE GIRL COMES TO TOWN

By Maysie Greig

SYNOPSIS: After disappointment in one love affair, Mary Lou Leslie is having a thoroughly enjoyable time with Tony Titherington. She is in London for a two weeks' visit and wants to make the most of it. Tony is an aviator, the favorite of his wealthy aunt, but she disapproves of his numerous girls. She has balked at Tony's attempts to induce her to back him financially on a flight around the world, his most cherished ambition. Tony takes Mary Lou to visit Aunt Ethelberta, and the spinster takes a fancy to this demure, "sensible" girl from the country. She tells Tony she will back his flight if he becomes engaged to Mary Lou. Tony has no intentions of marrying any girl, and he asks Mary Lou to enter into a make-believe engagement until he completes the flight. After some hesitation she agrees.

Chapter 16

A JOB FOR MARY LOU

In her imagination Mary Lou often had broken the news of her engagement to Jay. She always pictured herself laughing excitedly, telling Jay breathlessly how Tony had proposed to her.

Now, however, that she was to be engaged to Tony, she felt none of the anticipated thrill—because this was different. So far as the world knew, she was engaged to Tony—yet actually she was not engaged at all.

Tony appeared to think that the game of make-believe only made the situation the merrier, but Mary Lou still was not convinced.

Having gained his point, Tony was pleased with the whole world in general, and Mary Lou in particular. Why not? Wouldn't this assure the needed financial backing from Aunt Ethelberta? To him, that left nothing to be desired.

He wanted to rush in with Mary Lou to break the news to Jay and Jerry. Mary Lou suggested that her cousins be included in the secret, but Tony was adamant in his objections.

"If we start telling anyone, it means that the story will get around, somehow or other. You know that people will start talking. Aunt Ethelberta will be sure to hear it, and there'd be a grand climax when she disinherited me. And she'd be sure to do it. Then there would be no more flying of any description. No, we mustn't risk it by telling a soul."

"We must carry on as though everything were normal, as though Cupid actually had shot the fatal dart. Besides, we are seriously engaged, if it comes to that. I'll bring you the jolly old ring in the morning. Even when you have cut me out of your life, you can keep it in memory of the time when you helped me to realize the one thing I wanted most to do."

"All right," she agreed. "I won't tell a soul. All the same, I don't like to deceive Jay."

Tony waved that objection aside. "We'll take them both out tomorrow night and treat 'em to a big dinner. Champagne, buckets of it, to drink our health. Jay will enjoy it. All women love an engagement. The subsequent marriage is usually a let-down, I think. Then, when later on you get engaged to some other chap, she'll have all the fun of it over again."

Mary Lou looked at him and wondered how any man could be such a fool. Did Tony really believe what he was saying, or was it to stifle an annoying little doubt that was troubling his conscience?

The more Tony talked of her ultimate engagement to some other fellow, the more she became convinced that for her there could be no one else.

When they drew up before Jay's home in Chelsea, she managed to dissuade him from coming inside.

"Not tonight, I'm a bit tired," she pleaded. "You can wallow in their congratulations tomorrow, if you like."

She was about to turn and run up the stairs, when Tony caught her hand.

"Look here, old dear, since we're engaged, don't I merit a kiss?"

Mary Lou's cheeks flamed. She tugged at her hand, trying to break away.

"Goose," he mocked her. "I believe you're actually embarrassed. What's the sense of an engagement if a few kisses aren't thrown in?"

"But we know we're not seriously engaged," Mary Lou protested. All the same she didn't tug at her hand quite so much.

Tony's eyes pleaded with her. "Let's pretend it's serious." He took her other hand, drew her closer. "No reason why we shouldn't pretend."

Suddenly she flung back her head and gave a short laugh.

"Yes, let's pretend."

Tony drew her to him, brushed his lips across her eyelids, down one of her cheeks, touched her mouth.

"Sweet," he breathed. He kissed her again.

She crept closer, gave him kiss for kiss. . . . He wished, he could have seen the two tears her willing to reveal every detail in that story.

Jay tried to appear all attention, but she hadn't stayed awake to hear about some stupid flight. She listened patiently for a time, then interrupted.

"But what are you going to do about Frinwood, Mary Lou? You can't possibly go back home and miss all the fun you're sure to have here in town."

"I do hate to go back," Mary Lou confessed. "I haven't dared to think about it. But what else can I do?"

Jay considered it. She stretched herself at full length on one side a time, and Mary Lou waited.

"I have it," she said at last. "How would you like a job here in town?"

"A job?" Mary Lou exclaimed in astonishment. "Of course, I'd adore it. But what could I do, and how could I get one?"

Jay's eyes crinkled in a smile. "I can give you a job."

"Really?"

"Sure. It happens to fit in rather well. Miss Fletcher, my assistant sales girl, is leaving soon to be married. As yet I haven't found anyone to take her place. The point is, why couldn't you handle it? Of course, you'd be busy most of the day, but you'd still have the late afternoons and evenings to play around with Tony. What do you say to that proposition?"

Mary Lou leaned forward impulsively and gripped Jay's hands. "You're a brick, Jay. But—will I be of any help to you at all?"

"Oh, no, not too much at first," Jay admitted, grinning. "But I'm sure that you have the ability, and I can train you in a short time."

Before long, I daresay, you'll be at least as good as Miss Fletcher, and probably better.

"I'll bet, however, that you'll be leaving me in the lurch to marry your Tony, just about as soon as you're really good at this selling game. That's the way these sales-girls do, you know, and now that you're engaged—"

She smiled as she said it, but Mary Lou didn't smile back.

"No, Jay, I won't be married for ages and ages."

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is

An article in a Mt. Carmel paper gives complimentary mention of his work in general and particularly of his plotting a lot of suburban land that is selling rapidly. Mr. Flynn is employed as engineer by four of the boroughs in that section. He is a son in law of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Stock, Baltimore street.

After the business meeting, the following "Florence Nightingale" program was rendered: Hymn; Scripture references and sentence prayers, by members of the class; piano solo, Ethel Zinkand; "Getting Ready to Help" Maybelle Lott; story of "The Wounded Shepherd Dog," Mabel Galbraith; "Training for Service," Blanche Noel; "The Call and Response," Majelle McClellan; "Equal to the Emergency," Edith Sheely; "The Lady in Chief," Miss Rosa Scott; Longfellow's poem, "Santa Filomena," Annie Lott; "A Life of Quiet Service," Helen Aumen; Recitation, "The Finding of the Cross," Edith Sheely; hymn; Benediction.

stone Hill. They will reside in Conneville.

Musselman—Burrell: Mrs. Margaret Swope Burrell, Washington, D. C., and Amos Sentman Musselman, Grand Rapids Michigan, were married Saturday in the former city.

Both are former residents of Adams County, Mrs. Musselman being the daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. John A. Swope, who at one time lived in Gettysburg and Mr. Musselman being a native of Fairfield. The bride is the widow of Dr. James L. A. Burrell, who was a prominent physician in Williamsport. She has three children.

Mr. Musselman attended Gettysburg college and later went to Michigan where he became active in Republican politics and was a candidate for Governor on his party's ticket. He is an uncle of J. Elmer Musselman, Miss Alice Musselman and Miss Carrie Musselman, of Gettysburg. Mr. Musselman was married once before to Miss Hostetter. They will reside at Robinson Road, Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Pecher—Sanders: In the presence of a host of friends two of the most popular young people in the vicinity of Fairfield, Miss Helen Sanders, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Sanders, Hamilton township, and Harry Pecher, Liberty township, were married in St. Mary's church, Fairfield, on Tuesday morning, at 8:30 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Sullivan.

FACING LIFE

Out of the worst to a little bit better. Out of disaster as quick as you can. Wasting no time as a whiner and fretter. A failure today, but tomorrow a man!

Up from the tumble the goal still to try for. Starting anew where the last hope went down. Wasting no minutes lost treasures to sigh for. Shipwrecked, but fighting your best not to drown!

After the fire and the last girder crashes. Dwell not too long on the desolate view. There on the site that is blackened with ashes. Courage must hasten to build up anew.

Nothing is altered by cursing or walling. Man grumbles with things as they are all in vain; But from the worst with a courage unflinching. Rises the stout heart to triumph again.

Vatican Issues Paper To Show Pontiff Is Active.

Vatican City, June 27 (AP).—In the face of widespread reports that Pope Pius was suffering from an old bladder disorder, the semi-official daily vatican communique Tuesday stressed how active the pontiff has been the last few days, although it made no denial that he was troubled by the disease.

Neither did it make formal admission that physicians had been consulted and that an operation was possible, as had been reported.

The communique instead cited ceremonies the pope had attended

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEWS ADAMS

THE PEACE OF SOLITUDE

THESE days of mine, as a convalescent, have not been unpleasant. When the human machine is slowed up, it gives its owner much time in which to ponder and reflect. The world itself looks so much different to one, temporarily on the side-lines, or who may be standing still, or resting.

These are days of rest at home, in the midst of beauty—trees all about, blooming flowers and birds busy in their nest making. Outside all is so quiet—merely the echo, now and then, of distant noises from the edge of the city.

There is wonderful rest in the peace of solitude. It is far more curative than any medicine. The nerves sleep, without tossing. The mind takes excursions into books and dreams over again the aims, ambitions and struggles of men and women of like form and temperament, perhaps, as this one which is for a little while divorced from the activity of the street and mart.

Returning health gives one so much reason for rendering thanks and for appreciating much that business and turmoil so often cloud. Slackened peace gives rest to the soul, too.

But in the peace of solitude all beauty seems to enlarge, and take upon itself greater color and fuller meaning. I believe that any life may be enlarged and strengthened by an occasional rest—even though that rest may be an enforced one. Often our greatest blessings come disguised or in a very roundabout way.

Cervantes wrote his great masterpiece, "Don Quixote," which, by the way, still stands as one of the world's greatest literary productions, while he was in jail. Not a very happy solitude, or a very peaceful one—but one out of which a great work of art arose.

Ignatius Loyola was a Spaniard, born in 1491. He was a page in the court of Ferdinand and Isabella. During the siege of Pampeluna, in 1521, he was wounded and crippled for life. It was while Ignatius Loyola was convalescing that he read the lives of the saints and had his entire life changed through his contemplation of religious subjects. At this time it was that he conceived the Order of Jesuits that was to become worldwide in its scope and influence.

In the peace of solitude much of the great and enduring works of this world have been conceived.

your feet for 15 minutes in a de-

Radox footbath for 3 or 4 nights—then lift corns and callouses right out—roots and all and they won't come back again either unless you your feet.No cutting or digging is required because Radox liberates oxygen which softens hard outer layers of corns, each night penetrating the pores further and

You Have Always Wanted to Know More About the Apex-Rotarex Ironers
HERE'S YOUR CHANCE

When we say that we would like you to become acquainted with the Apex ironer, we mean it. We know that you will be missing something if you do not sit down and use it in your own home.

And then think of how restful it would be to do your ironing while comfortably seated . . . with both hands free to guide the things over the roll and to nicely fold them as they are finished. That is all there is to an ironing with the Apex Ironer. We invite you to have a free home demonstration . . . at no cost . . . no obligation.
